CASE STUDY - Payments Pro

Formed in 2017 & based in Kent, Payments Pro is an FCSA-accredited payroll company offering umbrella & CIS models. Since the company's inception, it has had to navigate the turbulent waters of the payroll industry where notions of transparency & honesty have come to the fore. Throughout this period, many umbrella companies have been searching for a payroll software system that both supports their business infrastructure & compliance position.

The market has been targeted by various software providers over the years each claiming to have developed a 'silver bullet' solution that meets these requirements simply & affordably. Inevitably the reality has proved to be somewhat different as the limitations of certain platforms have been swiftly exposed in the face of technological advancements & the complexities of paying thousands of contractors working under a variety of models.

My Digital gives us the confidence that we can scale up the business as necessary & that we are not limited by location as we can run the payroll from anywhere. From day one, the personalised support from My Digital has been second to none, absolutely fantastic. A ticketing system would not work in this industry as we are dealing with contractors' wages, so we need a live resolution; the clock doesn't stop just because it is the end of the day.

I love it that the support team can take control of our screens & find a problem that is not always immediately apparent; this, combined with their industry knowledge, which is second to none, usually means that they can solve the problem much faster than any other provider. The support team always resolve any issue I might have & make sure that we are happy with the service we receive.

We wanted to grow with technology rather than people and not become one of the dinosaurs of the industry with more staff and manual processing. My Digital's technology has helped us scale the business and rise up through the marketplace.

You can have the best software in the world, but it doesn't matter if you don't have a really good customer support process just in case something breaks. The thing we value the most is reliability; as much as software plays a star role in any business, it has to be something in the background, but pivotal. My Digital fulfils this function as a quiet system partner which is exactly what we need.

CASE STUDY - Husp

Based in Reading and formed in 2020, Husp provides payroll services for contractors primarily active in the finance and banking sectors.

FCSA accredited and part of the Huntswood Group of Companies which operates as a recruitment outsourcer, Husp was originally created to give contractors the option of a one-stop service that included both their placements and their payroll.

With this in mind, it was imperative that their chosen software platform was able to be aligned across the group to support Husp's desire to deliver a cost-effective, efficient and affordable solution to their workers.

We learnt a lot on the guidance given by John, Katie & Dan at the beginning who spent a lot of time on Team calls and training our staff. It was a joined-up process which is vital as we work in a very regulated and formal industry where due diligence is paramount.

Throughout the selection process, we met with many software providers and involved all our teams including technology, legal and HR to draw up a checklist of our requirements. It soon became clear that My Digital was my preferred option as I wanted the support of a company with real payroll and legislation expertise. This was important as my team can just pick up the phone if anything changes.

Husp duly implemented My Digital to run their payroll, CRM and finance functions which has given them a platform by which to grow their contractor volumes.

Jay Gadhher
Operations Director

The time it takes to run payroll has been significantly reduced and we can continue using the system as normal when payroll is processing. This means we can work more efficiently, and our clients experience an improved response time for their invoice requests. Utilising cloud-based software like My Digital has made remote working much easier too as our teams can access the system from anywhere with an internet connection.

Edward Thomas has grown significantly in recent years and using My Digital gives us the ability to process payroll at speed and without increasing our headcount.
